

GREAT LAKES
ISLANDS ALLIANCE

2024 ANNUAL REPORT

www.glialliance.org

THE GREAT LAKES ISLAND COMMUNITIES are places based on cycles and seasonality. Though each island, and each year, is a little different, there is some constancy and predictability. The late spring and early summer sees the “opening up” of the islands, marked by the return of summer residents, tourists and related activity. The early winter sees their departure, the eventual slowing or closing of ferries, and the winter residents finally having time to catch up on those small projects around the house.

With the notion of cycles in mind, GLIA will use the New Year to look back again and reflect on what we have achieved together. With the completion of 2024, GLIA now has six full years under its belt. We hope you join us in being proud of our growth and impact. The accomplishments listed below are the product of many people. Being part of GLIA means you have a connection to over 200 (and growing) islanders. That is powerful and a testament to what we can achieve together into the future.

In September 2024, GLIA proudly hosted its fifth Great Lakes Islands Summit in the Les Cheneaux Islands. The Summit featured over a dozen panels and presentations covering a variety of topics, including emergency preparedness, fundraising, transportation, media engagement, youth involvement, and environmental protection. Participants had the unique opportunity to explore the stunning landscapes and historic structures of the Les Cheneaux Islands during a guided boat tour, narrated by representatives from the Les Cheneaux Islands Association. Attendees also heard from the Les Cheneaux Youth Advisory Committee, as well as from experts representing community foundations, Island newspapers, emergency response teams, local educators, administrators, and others.

"Connection" is a key term for GLIA and one that serves multiple purposes. As a non-partisan organization our mission is to connect Great Lakes islands to one another across political boundaries. Externally, we track and communicate with many other organizations and networks around the Great Lakes—and beyond—who align with our interests. There, our role is to educate and influence, often starting with the basic "Did you know? The Great Lakes has many island communities." Examples include the International Joint Commission, the Maine Islands Coalition, and Climate Strong Islands Network.

2024 GLIA UPDATES

April 2024 saw the arrival of two new part-time staff: Philip Rice as Communications Specialist, is tasked with marketing, web development, public relations, media, and internal communications; and Lisa Paul Sierk as Fundraising Specialist, oversees donor development, grants, sponsorships, and fundraising campaigns. Going into 2025, they join Matt Preisser, GLIA Coordinator (a part-time role contributed by the State of Michigan), as the three staff responsible for running the day-to-day activities of GLIA. Peter Huston finished his one-year role as Events Coordinator, following his earlier successful run as Project Manager (2021-2023). We thank the Mott Foundation for supporting the new staff positions!

GLIA continued to host its monthly member meetings via Zoom in 2024. In addition to covering network-wide business, these meetings are an opportunity for islanders to ask questions of one another and share updates from their communities, such as the development of a new island study or receipt of a new grant to undertake an important island project. These have provided inspiration and templates for other islands. Starting in January, GLIA extended its monthly meetings from 60 to 90 minutes and used the last half hour for deeper discussions about different topics, sometimes bringing in an expert speaker. These have proven to be valuable ways to hear progress being achieved in other island communities.

GLIA completed its first-ever strategic plan in August. The comprehensive plan outlines a focused approach to addressing the challenges and opportunities facing Great Lakes islands. The plan follows the GLIA charter's four primary areas of development: connection between island communities, information access, encouraging multi-island collaboration, and amplifying island voices.

At the close of 2024, Lee Ann Schaub replaced Ned Hancock, both from Madeline Island, Wisconsin, on the Steering Committee. Steve Wermuth replaced Patti Johnson, both from Kelleys Island, Ohio, as Alternates. Peter Huston from South Bass Island, Ohio filled an open Alternate spot, reprising the role he held several years ago. The SC plays an important role by guiding the overall direction and vision for GLIA. We thank Ned and Patti for their many years of volunteer service!

How do remote island communities handle the doldrums of a long winter?

In the Les Cheneaux Islands area of northern Lake Huron, they hold an annual event called Snowsfest. Running for 63 years, this one-of-a-kind festival includes fireworks, face painting, snowmobile rides, outhouse and cardboard sled races, and a pub crawl. A GLIA member from Amherst Island, Lake Ontario was so inspired by Snowsfest that he organized a winter festival for his island. The first-ever Amherst event, in February 2024, included multiple island organizations and included a pancake breakfast, car rally, crafts, games for kids and adults alike, panel discussion about island history, and, of course, a pub night. The festival was so well received that they plan to make it an annual affair. GLIA is proud to have played a small role in inspiring this major community event!
